The Seventh Regiment.

At Madison, dated to-day, that the Seventh Regiment will pass through Janesville on Wednesday.

Rock and Green County Regiment.

The question is daily asked, "When will this regiment go into camp?" We are authorized to say there are three companies now quartered in this city, and that these and other companies will go into camp just as soon as the tents and blankets can be got.

The seventh regiment, which is now ready for Washington, did not get all their tents until Saturday last. The eighth regiment, which is in Camp Randall, has not got all its tents yet, and they have no blankets at all.

The Governor purchased four thousand blankets in New York, which were to have been delivered last week, instead of which, only two hundred were delivered. The Rock and Green county regiment will receive attention just as soon as the two regiments in Camp Randall leave for the seat of war.

The central military committee have six companies formed, numbering about four hundred and thirty men; they have squads of men numbering together seventy to or eighty more in the county not yet formed into companies, so that the committee have in all 500 to 510 men enrolled and sworn in for the war. Great activity prevails through the county, and enlistments are going on at the rate of thirty to forty per day.

The regiment for Rock and Green counties is a certainty now, and it will go into camp at the earliest possible moment. Meanwhile let the enlistments go on. Let every man enlist or obtain some one to enlist, and if he can't do either, let him pay money to the committee to help them enlist men. Let every man do something.

People's Country Fair.—The secretary's office for entries will be on the fair ground to-morrow morning, the 17th, which is the first day of the fair. A large number of entries have been made to-day, much exceeding the expectations of the managers. It is evident, already, that the people are taking great interest in this fair, and that it will be a success.

Volunteers from Johnson.—Mr. A. M. Carter brought in seven volunteers from Johnson this morning, to join the Rock County Volunteer regiment. More are preparing to come. Johnson will do her duty.

Patriotic Fun for the Town of Harmony.—The subscribers to the fund to support the families of volunteers in Harmony, are notified that an assessment of twenty per cent has been made, and they are requested to pay the same to the town committee without delay.

There will be a meeting at the Harmony school house on Saturday, Sept. 21st, at 4 o'clock p. m. One or more of the county committee will be present.

By order of the Town Com.

A libel suit against Horace Greeley, brought against him by Hon. D. Witt C. Littlejohn, speaker of the lower house of the New York legislature, is in progress at Palaski, Oswego county, N. Y. The allegation in the New York Tribune, upon which the action is founded, is to the effect that Mr. Littlejohn had been persistent in corrupting the legislature, and ought to be deposed. The trial excites great interest among politicians and others.

The aggregate free population of the eleven seceded states amounts to 5,581,649. The total population of New York and Pennsylvania is 6,813,500—being 1,235,921 more than all secessionism. The fighting men of the rebelio is states—or those between eighteen and forty-five years of age—number 1,116,000, while in New York and Pennsylvania the aggregate is 1,250,000.

District Convention.

The assembly district convention composed of the towns of Rock, Plymouth, Newark, Avon and Spring Valley, met pursuant to notice, at Orford, September 14th, 1861.

G. W. Stetson was chosen chairman and Orrin Guernsey secretary.

Orrin Guernsey and C. F. Dickey were elected delegates to the state convention at Madison, on the 25th.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That this convention recommend the propriety of revising the present appointment for delegates in this county, and would respectfully call the attention of the county committee to the matter.

Resolved, That we recommend to the district committee that the call for the next convention be deferred, until the county committee act on the subject of the new apportionment.

CAMP ADVANCE, Va., Sept. 10th, 1861.

DEAR GAZETTE:—We become accustomed to sudden changes in our location after a short time spent in moving at a moment's notice. In your own quiet little town one never thinks of moving in less than a week's time after many a long day spent in getting ready, and to fit up a home is a task requiring more than Herculean efforts and more than a year's time. Here we sit up our home in an hour after stopping; then in a few moments we are jogging on as though we had not changed places for a life time, and after getting well at work, well acquainted with our new home, the order comes "pack up—fall-in—march," we are off, just as quick as we had loaded.

We left Camp Randall at a day's notice, Harrisburg at the notice of a single night, Baltimore at an hour's notice, Washington on a moment's knowledge; so you see that places which have been thickly populated one hour have been deserted the next, and places where not a soldier was to be seen at night there were thousands at day-break.

Here where we are, a thick grove stood one day and not a soldier was to be seen, the next day the grove laid flat, and the whole country was alive with armed men. I do not know how many soldiers there are here, but there are a fine lot of them, and more coming every day. Well, I must eat breakfast now as Mr. Read is calling out "come this way for coffee."

Breakfast is now over and the Zouaves, who went out last night on a scout, have just returned, and bring two horses and one prisoner; they saw seven of the enemy's cavalry and shot two, the rest got away.

But for a man who was feeding some horses in a barn they would have taken the whole squad.

A small party of our cavalry which went out last evening returned bedtime with a rebel Colonel. The pickets brought in an old "secesh" last Sunday, who was very angry at them, and refused to come in until they put a rope around his neck and led him into a camp.

The "contrabands" are coming in every day, and the rebels, to keep them from us, are moving them farther from us. I must close for a while, as now we are going out to work on the Port.

Well, I have been out to work, and was detailed by Capt. Wheeler to help him do some extra work, and while I wait I will write.

Our scouts have just brought in four more prisoners, and some cattle for beef—One of the pickets was shot last night by another, who mistook him for a rebel. We received an alarm of an attack night before last, about two o'clock in the morning, and in less than five minutes we were in line of battle, and thus slept on our arms till daylight. The alarm proved to be false; but still the quickness of the boys to get into line showed their readiness to fight the enemy when they have a chance.

I was down to see the Second Regiment last night and found them enjoying themselves well. Saunders was writing with a board on his knee for a table and a piece of candle stuck on one end for a light. Lieut. McLean was happy as a clam, as they expect to be paid off to-day or to-morrow.

We are getting off the fort nearly completed, and when done it will be a hard one to take. We are at work now hanging the gates, trimming up the walls, clearing the brush and leaves away from it, to be ready to burn off the brush, and putting pointed brush around on the outside of the trench to keep the enemy from running up to them.

One of the Vermont volunteers was sentenced to be shot yesterday for sleeping on his post while on guard, but just as the sentence was going to be executed a pardon from the President came. I think the poor fellow will never sleep on his post again.

Corporal McDaniel has just arrived from Phillips' Battery, where Lieut. Clum and his squad are, and reports them all well—He says they have an easy time of it, live on fruit and the fat of the land, have a good barn to sleep in, and nothing to do but watch three guns. While we would be very glad to see them we are glad they are in so good a place, and hope they may never fare harder than now.

Last night Lieut. Mills came up with those we left in Camp Kalarama (except the sick), and he is nearly well of his lameness, so nearly so that he is on duty to-day, helping the boys carry timbers.

We are now in the merits of camp life, living in bush tents with fires in front for cooking or lights in the night time. We eat without the trouble of table or chairs, and enjoy ourselves well. I write now with an account book on my knees for a table, and have my gun ready at a moment's notice to seize it and start. The enemy are steadily retiring from the approach of our pickets, and are said to be leaving Fairfax Court House. They doubtless hope to draw us into another Bull's Run, but I think they will hardly succeed, as General McClellan means to move sure.

I must close as it is nearly dinner time. Yours in haste,

J. M. KIMBALL.

From the Second Regiment.

MERIDIAN HILL, Sept. 9, 1861.

DEAR GAZETTE:—I received a number of your paper some time since, and as it had not been unfolded, I concluded it was sent me from your office. In return, I thought I would write a short letter for your paper; you will recollect, however, that I am no letter writer, and would not write this only in return for the favor. It is a small matter, I know, but it reminds us that we are not forgotten by our friends at the north.

I have been sick almost ever since I came to Washington. My last sickness, from which I have but just recovered, was the typhoid fever, a prevalent disease, and quite fatal among the soldiers here. I was in the hospital at Georgetown for three weeks, and when they talked of sending a lot of us up to Annapolis, Md., I thought it time to leave, and so ran away from the hospital, went to the camp, and am now with the company again.

The 2d, 5th and 6th Wisconsin and 79th New York went from here up the Potomac to the Chain Bridge, for the purpose of building forts and throwing up breastworks on the other side of the river. They took nothing with them but their blankets, canteens and haversacks. They started about 11 P. M. They are close to the rebels, so near that when a man gets strayed outside our pickets, he is pretty sure to be taken prisoner by the enemy.

Perhaps you have heard of the capture and escape of Capt. Strong of the Belle City Rifles. Well, I have the details from the captain himself, and will give them as near as I can recollect. He was out surveying the country on the Virginia side for the purpose of extending the picket guard. While performing this duty, all at once he was surrounded by six rebels and taken prisoner. He did not see them until it was too late to retreat. They ordered him to go with them, although some were for killing him; but they finally concluded to take him to their camp. They rode along, one on each side, two in front and two in the rear of him, and had not proceeded far when those in the rear discovered that he had two revolvers. They halted and demanded that he should give them up—The captain replied, "certainly," and then taking out the revolvers, he cocked them quickly in front of him, as they got round nearly as though he fired and killed two of his captors; firing a few more shots, he sprang for the woods, a distance of about forty rods; but before he reached it he was overtaken by one of the cavalry, who riding by his side, put his carbine to the captain's breast, and just as he fired the captain turned partly round, and by that means saved his life. The ball passed through his coat and shirt, burning his coat with the powder. The captain then shot the man in the shoulder and he fell (swearing as he came down), from his horse; his foot caught in the stirrup, and the last that was seen of him, his head was playing the tune of the "rip raps," and his horse under full speed. The captain came over here yesterday and told his story. He has three ball holes to show for it. One ball passed through his canteen, one through his coat, and one entered his cheek and came out of his mouth; this last is supposed to be a lucky shot only. He is doing well and will be able to join his company in a few days.

I am captain of this invalid company, at least I occupy the captain's tent, but Sergt. A. F. Lee is commander, and says that all goes well. There are over one hundred men left in this camp, but most of them are sick or lame. Major Allen came over here yesterday and took all the boys that were able to go on the other side of the river. We have now only sixteen of our company on this side of the river.

There is a grist mill near here that to me is quite a curiosity. It was built in 1812. The gearing is all wood, is in running order, and makes good flour.

About one hundred thousand soldiers have crossed the river within a few days, but no one except the officer in command knows to what place they are destined. You may expect to hear of some great battle before many days.

The rebels are daring, and come very near, but as the federal advance, they retreat. We hear daily reports of the sickness in the southern army, and there is little doubt but they are dying off very fast. Well, all those who die will not have to be killed, so let the work go on.

I must now close, for it is most time for the mail, so no more at present.

Very truly, W. H. FOOTE.

Janesville Fire Zouaves.

This company has been sworn into the service of the United States, has received its tents and camp equipment. The members have received their uniforms complete, some twenty-five men are needed to fill the company to the required number. For purpose of company to the required number. SLOAT'S SEWING MACHINES.

Can be seen at four doors east of the Post Office, M waukee street. These Machines have proved the superiority over those heretofore offered to the public from the following reasons: The simplicity of the complete adjustment to all thickness of fabric—
They are the simplest machines in use and least liable to get out of order. They are so simple and complete in their construction as not to require a practical hand to use them. They are, in fact, the only sewing machine that can be kept in repair one year free of charge. F. L. KAYSON, Agent.
